Author of Hello, Startup and Terraform: Up & Running

About me

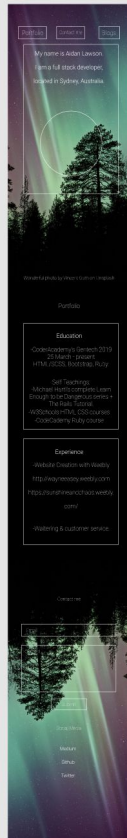

Yevgeniy (Jim) Brikman loves programming, writing, speaking, traveling, and lifting heavy things. He does not love talking about himself in the 3rd person. He is the co-founder of Gruntwork, a company that provides DevOps as a Service. He's also the author of two books published by O'Reilly Media: Hello, Startup and Terraform: Up & Running. Previously, he worked as a software engineer at LinkedIn, TripAdvisor, Cisco Systems, and Thomson Financial and got his BS and Masters at Cornell University. For more info, check out his writing, speaking, projects, and photos.

Image Background

Easy to style

Simple layout

Second Design

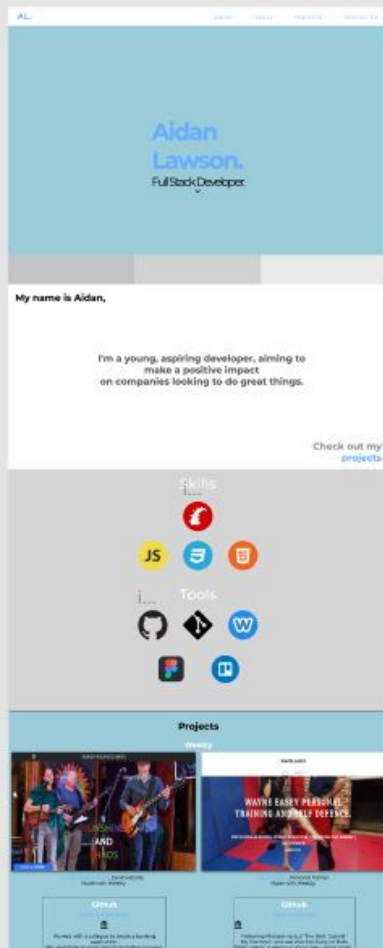

Blue, grey, and white theme.

4-5 sections.

Minimalist, simple design.

Hard to get lost.

Gets the point across.

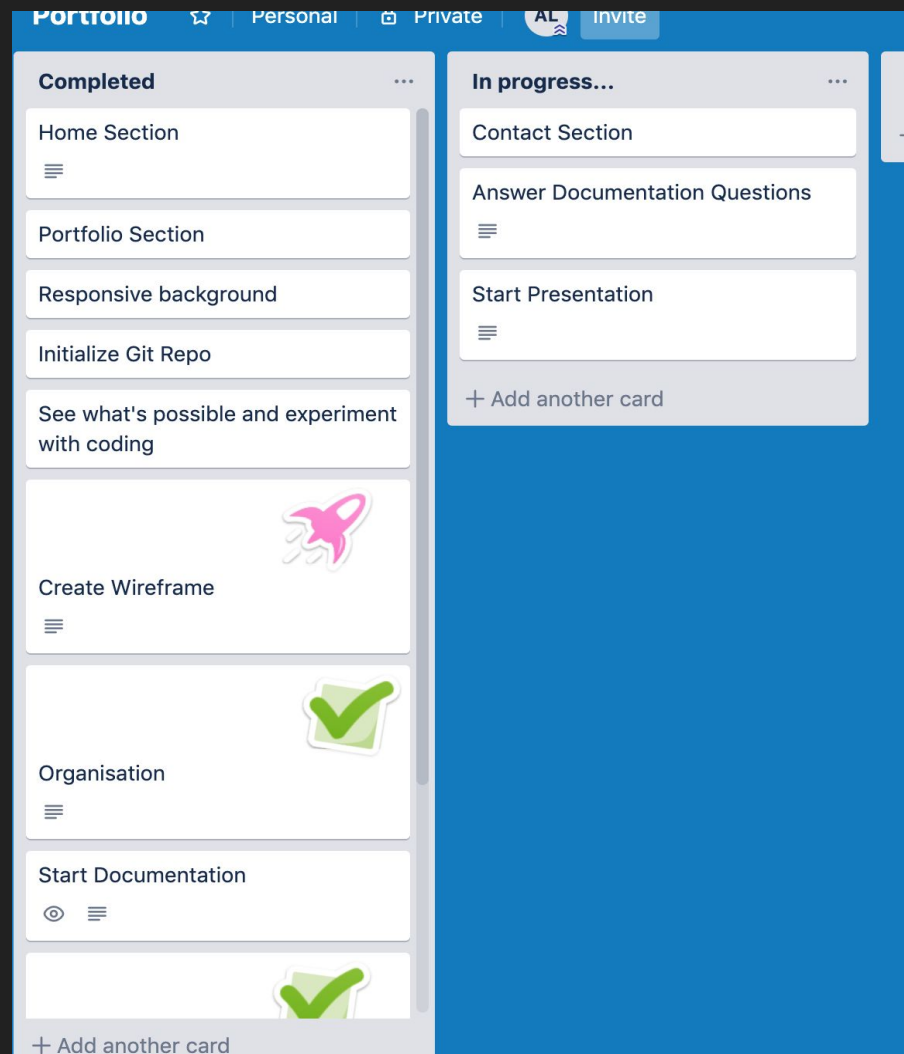

Organisation

At the start of every day, I decided what I wanted to get done.

Once I knew what I wanted to get done during the day, I prioritized, what I thought I could get done, along with what was seemingly most important.

To organise this thought process, I used Trello boards.

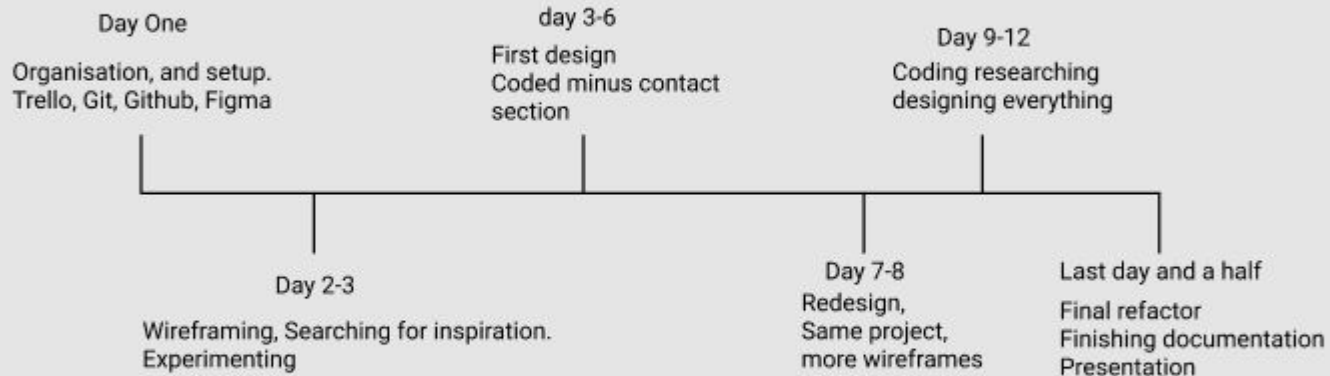

Building the site.

Things I enjoyed: HTML, Learning Design, knowing exactly what I could do with these tools (HTML, CSS). Learning more about CSS.

Things I struggled with: Learning more about CSS, SASS, media queries and responsive design, CSS organisation, making the website visually appealing.

TimeLine

Future Implementations

Updated skills and tools section.

Adding a “skill level” graph or bar.

Better CSS structure and Utilising SASS.

More animation.

Better file organisation.
